A Novel Treatment to Boost Quit Attempts and Cessation Among Unmotivated Smokers

The primary specific aim this large RCT is to test whether adding free nicotine replacement therapy (NRT) to brief advice to undertake a practice quit attempt will motivate more smokers to make a serious attempt to stop smoking than a brief advice without NRT.

Role: PI

Alpha-1 Foundation Research Registry Program and ACT Study
The goal of the Registry is to facilitate Alpha-1 research by providing investigators with a group of Alphas and carriers willing to consider participation in research. The Alpha-1 Coded Testing (ACT) Trial offers free and confidential finger-stick testing for Alpha-1 Antitrypsin Deficiency. The test is administered through a research study which evaluates perceived risks and benefits of genetic testing.

Combined Pharmacologic/Behavior Therapy in Adolescent Smokers
Even though adolescence is a crucial period for initiation of smoking and progression to regular smoking, there is a lack of evidence for effective treatments for adolescent smokers. The primary goal of this project is to examine the relative efficacy of medication (bupropion SR),

Contingency management (CM) and medication + CM for smoking cessation and treatment retention for smoking cessation in adolescents.
